

PREMIER FIRED IN NEWEST CZECH CRISIS

EQUILIBRIUM STILL LACKING FOR EUROPEANS

So Declares Eric I. Grimwade In Rotary-Sponsored Address

BRITAIN DROPS ROLE OF UMPIRE

Taken Up by U.S.; Asserts Italy Is Only Dupe For Hitler

Understanding between nations can be cultivated not only as informed opinion but in the sense of imaginative sympathy without sacrificing American national interest or independent judgment. To understand, we must see things as the other fellow sees them, although we may not agree with him.

This, in short, was an important point Eric Illingworth Grimwade of Stoke-on-Trent, England, emphasized for his audience at the High school auditorium last night—appearing in the third program of the Institute of International Understanding, sponsored by the Salem Rotary club.

"Search for Equilibrium"
Grimwade, a student of international affairs and a journalist, spoke on the subject, "The Search for a European Equilibrium."

The search for European equilibrium has lasted for centuries," he said. "Ultimately it has meant the search for peace, but actually it has been interpreted as the balance of the powers."

"The aim of British policy has been to maintain the balance of power. So Great Britain fought Napoleon and the Kaiser when they tried to dominate Europe. One wonders what is going to happen to Great Britain now."

"However, he pointed out, 'this policy has not brought peace, unity or stability in European affairs, but almost continual war.'"
"At Munich in September of last year, Mr. Chamberlain made history by abandoning this balance of power policy. He virtually gave Germany a free hand to establish economic and political control over Europe. Instead of being an umpire who kept the fighting going and devised the rules for it, Great Britain's role has become isolationist or defensive. We (Great Britain) appear just as an island off the coast of Europe."

Grimwade explained that Germany, successful in ventures to date, is now free to pursue the drive to the east, but friction with ruling circles in small countries and internal difficulties prevent immediate concentration on that goal. "So there arises the present threat of crisis in the west, with Germany using Italy as the cat's paw," he said.

"Italy has been the dupe and has become the tool of German policy. Among other evidence is the contrast of their intervention in Spain," he pointed out. "Mussolini's demands also have strengthened the trend toward Fascism in France. The goal of German policy is a Fascist United States of Europe—presided over by Germany."

"President Roosevelt's apparent support of Great Britain and France tends to moderate the aggressiveness of this program," the speaker

Three Boys Battle It Out For Top Scholastic Rating

A three-way tie for first place features the list of the first 10 honor students at Salem High school, announced today by Principal H. M. Williams. The selections were made according to scholastic ratings for seven semesters.

Tied for first place are Winthrop Difford, John Evans and William Rogers, Henry Pauline, who is next, actually is fourth.

The other honor students, according to their ratings, are: Mary Louise Emery, fifth; Viola McGaffick, sixth; Dorothy Milligan, seventh; Bettie Sharp and Frank Stone, tied for eighth; Alice Zalko and Betty Lee Stout, tied for 10th place.

The scholastic ratings are determined by the semester grades alone and the list may be subject to revision at the end of the school year.

The three students in first place have earned 28 A's or more during their seven semesters of high school work.

Difford is a member of the debate team, is president of the High School association and belongs to the Hi-Y and Boys' Glee club.

Evans, editor of the Quaker weekly and yearbook, also is Senior class president, a member of the band, the Hi-Y and the National Thespians.

Rogers, vice president of the Senior class, is a debater and just two weeks ago won first place in the district extemporaneous speech contest. He also is a member of the Hi-Y and the Varsity "S" club.

MAKE PROGRESS ON STREET JOB

With Sewer Laid, West Fifth St. Grading Operations Begin

The W. Fifth st. project, first paving job under the city's WPA blanket street improvement program, is progressing rapidly. City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff said today.

A 24-inch storm sewer has been laid, while grading of the street, preparatory to laying the base, is two-thirds completed. The street is to be paved between N. Ellsworth and Jennings avenues.

The engineer said the workers expected to start pouring curbs very soon and that the actual paving would follow shortly afterwards. Men, assigned to the job by the WPA, also are at work at the city's stone quarry, where material for the base is being obtained.

Following passage by city council of necessary legislation Tuesday night, Barckhoff indicated several other street improvements would soon be under way.

PLEA RENEWED FOR MORE ROOM AT FAIRMOUNT

Children's Home Trustees Say Construction Is Imperative

ROSTER DOUBLES WITHIN 10 YEARS

Stark County Is Ready to Act; Plan Beaten In Columbiana

With enrollment growing at the Fairmount Children's home, near Alliance, trustees of the home, following their regular meeting, today discussed preliminary plans for renewing efforts to put through a new school project.

Supt. R. D. George's report of enrollment March 1 showed 295 children living at the institution, one more than double the 147 who were there 10 years ago last month when George's term of service began.

In addition, there are 278 Fairmount wards residing in private homes because there is no room for them at the institution. It is the duty of the home to provide lodging for all wards at Fairmount where possible.

Stress School Need
The overcrowding problems, together with inadequate school facilities, were viewed by trustees as making construction of a new school urgently necessary. A new school building would release the present school for use as living quarters, partially relieving the crowded condition, and would also enable overflow classes to move out of the basement of the main Fairmount building. Use of the basement for school purposes has caused the state department of education to disapprove of the school setup at Fairmount.

First brought up a year and a half ago, the school project has been dormant since last August when efforts to raise Columbiana county's share of the cost met their second defeat at the polls. Stark county has had money ready to contribute to the construction once the Columbiana share was assured.

Nine New Adoptions
Nine new adoptions of Fairmount children were approved at the meeting. George reported that three children were leased from the institution during February and eight additions to the Fairmount family were received.

Reorganization of the trustees board, made necessary by the resignation of President F. W. Wiedmayer of Leetonia, was deferred because of the absence of two members, F. E. Owen of East Palestine and J. H. Klinge of Massillon. Paul C. Siddall acted as chairman pro tem of the meeting and Trustees Amos Eckert of Home Worth and Charles R. Raedel of Canton also were present.

TRUCK DRIVER DRAWS $25 FINE

2 Children, from School Bus, Endangered, Patrol Charges

Basilo Germana, 23, of Cleveland, arrested this morning by State Patrolman D. H. Cole on a reckless driving charge after allegedly passing two trucks and a school bus on a hill at Unity, was fined $25 and costs when arraigned in Mayor Arthur Myers court at Columbiana.

The defendant, who was driving a large coal truck, was committed to the county jail at Lisbon in default of payment.

John Ferguson of R. D. 1, Columbiana, driver of the school bus, preferred the charge against Germana and said that two children attempting to get onto the school bus were almost hit by the defendant's truck.

Shovel Operator Draws Fine of $100

LISBON, March 10.—L. E. Brauning of Youngstown was fined $100 and costs Thursday afternoon by Justice of the Peace M. K. Zimmerman on a charge of transporting a steam shovel through the county without a permit.

Brauning, secretary and treasurer of the Marshall Mining Co., was ordered to appear in court Thursday after Deputy Sheriff M. K. Duty had stopped a truck, carrying a steam shovel, near Lisbon Wednesday. The driver was unable to produce a permit.

Brauning's company had been engaged in strip mining operations in the county and was moving the shovel to another location.

Lisbon Marine Says Chinese Better Fighters Than Japs

LISBON, March 10.—Man for man, the Chinese soldier is a better fighter than the Jap, in the opinion of Miles Johnston, platoon sergeant in the U. S. marine corps, who is visiting friends here on a 30-day furlough.

The sergeant was stationed at Shanghai in charge of a detail guarding part of the International settlement during the period the Japs were attacking the city. He said the Japs owed their successes principally to superior equipment.

Johnston said he had seen no atrocities committed by either side, adding that he had never talked with anyone who had witnessed atrocities. He laughed at the report concerning the Jap soldier's eagerness to die in battle.

"I've read where the Jap's religion guarantees him a place in battle," the officer said. "If he believes that, it certainly isn't reflected in his fighting. He'll run if things get too hot."

Both belligerents are poor marksman, according to Johnston. He cited an instance where the Japs fired at a prominent point in China for a month before scoring a direct hit. Thirty per cent of the bombs used are duds, he said.

Offsetting the Japs' lack of skill with fire arms is an exceptional ability with the bayonet, the sergeant declared. The majority of them have been trained in jiu-jitsu, making them supple and quick. The Chinese, according to the marine, prefer long knives, which they also handle expertly.

The Japs carry crematories with them in which to burn their dead, Johnston said. Frequently Japanese soldiers will carry pouches hanging from their necks, containing the ashes of some friend or relative.

Johnston was stationed four and a half months in Shanghai. He was sent there from the Philippine Islands where he served for 20 months. The sergeant says the rank and file of the islanders are opposed to autonomy, preferring to remain with the United States.

Johnston has served in the marine corps for ten years and expects to re-enlist when his present "hitch" expires next year. He is a former Lisbon High school football and basketball star, graduating in 1923.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 10.—Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor today announced appointment of William T. Cleary, famed Cincinnati detective, as chief of the department's enforcement division.

The six-foot, 200-pound Cleary, who once served as personal bodyguard to Pope Pius XII, will take over the new position as soon as he can arrange leave from the Cincinnati police department.

He succeeded Al Humphrey, whose position has been vacant since the Republican administration took over the state government in January.

Cleary, 52, has been a member of the Cincinnati police department for 26 years and was a city fireman five years before that. Although entitled to retirement on a pension, he was expected to ask a leave of absence to take the new job.

Directors Oppose Lower Freight Rate

COLUMBUS, March 10.—Directors of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce favor some program to solve railroad ills, but are opposed to proposed freight changes which it feels would penalize northern industry by granting lower rates from the south into northern territory. A. Graves Williams of Portsmouth, president of the chamber, said today.

Directors also discussed the Social Security system at a session here yesterday, and Williams said they expressed opposition to changing the act to liberalize provisions regarding old age insurance and extended coverage.

FEUD OUTBREAK OF MUNICH PACT

Reports Heard Slovak Extremists Advocating Secession

(By Associated Press)
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, March 10.—President Hacha dismissed the premier of Slovakia today and sent Czech troops into the autonomous territory to check radical elements demanding full independence from the Prague government.

The family feud between the provincial and central governments had smoldered since the Slovaks won autonomy after the Munich partition last September.

It flamed into the open last night in anti-Czech demonstrations at Bratislava, Slovak capital.

There had been reports during the last week that Slovak extremists were advocating secession, including one report that they had tried and failed to win German backing.

President Hacha acted suddenly today by naming Vice Premier Josef Sivak to succeed Premier Joseph Tiso and dismissing Economics Minister Jan Fruzinski and Labor Minister Ferdinand Durichansky.

Tiso and the two ministers were placed under police supervision.

Slovak affairs were carried on by Minister Josef Teplinsky pending return of the newly appointed premier, Sivak, who was called back from a journey to Rome where he was going for the coronation of Pope Pius XII.

Prague authorities said radicals appeared to be gaining headway with their demands for independence and that it was necessary to dispatch troops and police into Slovakia.

The Prague government spokesmen said they were bringing the situation well under control.

Prof. Alois Tuka, leader of the Slovak independence movement, and Sano Mach, chief of the Slovak propaganda service, were arrested.

Four Die As B. & O. Streamliner Rams Sedan at Crossing

AKRON, March 10.—Authorities investigated today a grade crossing crash in suburban Cuyahoga Falls that claimed four lives when the crack Capitol Limited, Baltimore & Ohio Streamliner, ramed into a sedan last midnight.

The dead were identified as John Lund, 55, his wife, Rose; Miss Catherine Trischler and Mrs. William E. Reynolds, all of Cleveland.

Sgt. H. E. Moody of the Cuyahoga Falls police said the auto was carried a quarter of a mile down the track. Bodies of two of the women were found in the wreckage and the others were hurled from the auto as the train swept it along, he said.

Miss Madeline Hansard, 23, of Cuyahoga Falls, riding in an auto behind the Lund sedan, said the driver of the car apparently was confused by a freight train passing the crossing from the south. The limited was southbound.

Miss Hansard said the flasher signals were working when the Lund car was driven onto the tracks.

The fifth Ohio train victim yesterday was Kim Shumansky, 8, who was killed in Huron when a freight train struck him as he played along the tracks with other boys.

Judge Dismisses Gov. Bricker Suit

COLUMBUS, March 10.—A $50,000 slander suit against Gov. John W. Bricker, filed by Moses T. Foberts, Columbus attorney, has been dismissed by Common Pleas Judge Robert P. Duncan. NERVOUSNESS

The nervous stranger who wondered if the menacing dog agreed with its owner that it wouldn't bite has a counterpart in every capital of the modern world.

If foreign statesmen read The Congressional Record and study official statements they would find that attack isn't the purpose of American military preparations, for instance.

As far as that's concerned, attack isn't their intention either, according to what they say. Without exception they are preparing to defend themselves.

Thus, Japan, alarmed by increases in United States naval armament, has announced it will strain an already strained budget to increase its own naval armament to a point of equality. The announcement scarcely had been received when the United States retaliated with plans of further new ship construction. Where does this stop?

To be sure, it is the prevailing American view that governments today are of two types. One type, including the United States, Great Britain and France, isn't interested in aggressive warfare. The other, including chiefly Germany and Italy, will take the offensive the instant it seems expedient. The peace loving nations, therefore, must be prepared to defend themselves. They must go further and take steps to keep themselves from being attacked.

This seems perfectly plain and logical—to them. It is not equally plain to other nations, unfortunately. They aren't inclined to take any chances, either. In the past, this nervousness was what kept armament races going full blast. It's having the same effect in the present.

PRE-WAR PROFITS

Discussion in the U. S. senate this week showed keen awareness of a nasty situation threatening popular confidence in the so-called national defense program.

The country is familiar with the phrase "war profits." It heard much about them during and after the World War.

Today, a different situation exists, described by the phrase, "pre-war profits." An attempt is being made to bring them under control before greed creates fresh scandals.

In approving the army expansion bill Tuesday the senate voted to limit manufacturers' profits to 10 percent in producing war material.

It did so at the behest of Sen. Tobey of N. Hampshire, who tackled the subject of pre-war profits with his gloves off last Monday.

Sen. Tobey readily admitted there are ways of getting around a 10 percent limit, but stressed the fact the war department can prevent excessive profits because it knows exactly what the cost of producing an airplane, for instance, should be.

The army expansion bill, previously passed by the house without the 10 percent profit clause, has gone to conference committee for adjustment of discrepancies. The 10 percent limit, for what it may be worth, should be retained. The United States has no more relish for pre-war profiteering than it had for war-profiteering.

Commerce Secretary Hopkins' promise of positive action to back up what he calls a continuation of New Deal attempts to encourage business will be received hopefully, no doubt, by those to whom it is addressed.

But hope, for the present, is as far as they feel it's safe to go. They still await the action itself. Despite what may be said now about the New Deal's unceasing concern for the welfare of free enterprise, its actions have not been always reassuring in the past.

They note that congress isn't expected to be given new reforms to enact this year for the obvious reason that it's not in a mood to cooperate with the administration. They are informed that for this reason early adjournment may be expected.

Under the circumstances they can't be blamed for suspecting the main factor in the administration's recent tone of moderation was last November's election, as reflected in the attitude of congress. It still remains to be seen how the election will be reflected in the attitude of the administration.

AMERICAN VERSION

With due allowances for hidden motives, it is reported as a matter of interest that Samuel Rushmore of Plainfield, N. J., has taken a cue from Mahatma Gandhi to put Mayor Hague of Jersey City on the spot.

Mr. Rushmore, a wealthy inventor, owns a valuable estate. Because he doesn't like Mayor Hague, whom he accuses of wielding excessive power in Jersey politics, he threatens to despoil his property.

Following appointment of Hague's son to New Jersey's highest court, Rushmore started to cut down trees. Other property owners became excited, fearing depreciation of land values. Presto! Hague was put on the spot. The inventor, presumably, won't quit chopping unless appointment of Hague's son is rejected by the state senate. He also threatens to leave the state.

This, it would seem, is the American version of passive resistance.

The chief trouble with Attorney General Frank Murphy's condemnation of sit-down strikes is that it came two years too late.

If a woman can fathom things by intuition, why the samhill does she ask so blooming many questions?

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an extremely happy, joyous and possibly hilarious year. Business should move at high pitch. The private life may be the scene of festive and exciting adventures, probably in connection with marriage, engagements or other romantic experience. It is a very auspicious time for literary or publishing endeavors.

A child born on this day may be splendidly gifted in the realm of art, music, literature and even business of a commercial nature where such talents are assets.

A LENTEN THOUGHT

By S. TALMAGE MAGANN
President Salem Ministerial Association
PREPARED

Read John 8:34-38

In our day of specialization, we face the temptation of becoming so deeply interested in our field that we neglect other important things in life.

About ten years ago I heard the story of a great botanist, so deeply interested in his field that he ignored many other important things. He tried to impress his students with his opinion that botany was the most important of all studies.

One day the learned professor was told of a very rare plant on a farm by the river near the university. He communicated with the owner of the farm who agreed to meet him the next afternoon and show him the rare plant.

In order to save time their arrangement included a trip across the river in the farmer's boat. At the appointed time they met and started across the river in the boat. On the way the learned professor talked enthusiastically about botany and then asked the farmer if he had ever studied it. When the farmer said "No," the professor sighed and said, "Well, you have missed half of your life."

After this they went on a moment in silence, and suddenly the boat sprung a big leak and began to sink rapidly. At this time the farmer said to the botanist, "Have you ever learned to swim?" When he replied "No," the farmer said, "Well, you are now in great danger of losing all of your life, for this river is treacherous and deep."

I do not vouch for the veracity of this story, but might suggest the great danger in neglecting one's soul. Divine guidance and spiritual strength is the only security in facing many of the crises in life.

Prayer: Give us, O Lord, each day, our daily bread for body, mind and spirit. Amen.

New Vitamin Is Often Used In Treating Jaundice Cases

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

JUST HOW many there are of those magic substances known as vitamins, which are present in all well-balanced diets and which keep so many essential functions in our bodies going, we do not know yet.

The first one which was identified has come to be known as vitamin B. Soon after its discovery vitamin A, the anti-infective agent; C, the anti-scurvy agent; D, the anti-rickets agent, were added to the list. B itself was broken up into to several divisions, one of which is known as vitamin G. Many other vitamins have been suggested, but all have not been accepted by the scientific world. The latest to come into the picture are vitamins K and E.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Vitamin K could not have been discovered until quite lately because we did not know enough of the functions over which it exerts control to recognize it.

Tendency to Bleed

For many years it has been known that patients with jaundice have a tendency to bleed excessively, but the exact mechanism of this derangement has not been understood. Within recent years it has been found that it is a particular property of bile to form compounds with a number of substances in the intestine so that they can be absorbed. In jaundice bile is absent from the intestine, and, therefore, this union and absorption does not take place and the body is deprived of substances valuable in nutrition.

In experimental animals such as rats, in which the bile has been deviated away from the intestinal tract, it is found that a slight cut or injury, such as snipping off the tail, will result in bleeding so prolonged and severe as to cause death. When, however, the bile is fed by mouth to these animals, along with substances which contain vitamin K, this tendency to hemorrhage is stopped. Vitamin K is, therefore, considered to be a factor which in some way increases ability of the blood to clot.

Green Leaves

Vitamin K is present in most normal diets. The best sources of vitamin K are green leaves. Many substances rich in other vitamins are very poor sources for vitamin K. Thus, cereals, carrots, potatoes, lemon juice, yeast, cod liver oil and wheat germ oil are poor sources.

Tomatoes, hemp seed and soy beans are moderately good sources.

The best source of vitamin K in the vegetable world is probably alfalfa, and I mentioned a story in this column last fall which illustrated the actual use of alfalfa as a medicine for a patient who was very sick with jaundice. In a natural human diet, of course, alfalfa is out, and we probably get our vitamin K from such green vegetables as we eat, from tomatoes and meat. It probably takes very little vitamin K to supply our needs.

The practical importance of these researches is very considerable for the surgeon. The surgeon has always been afraid to operate on a patient with jaundice on account of danger of hemorrhage. Now it is known that vitamin K can be introduced into the blood and will reduce the tendency to hemorrhage.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendingen can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, 235 W. 45th St., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Feeding and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

MILFORD, N. H.—Dr. Herbert S. Hutchinson, 89, believed to be the oldest practicing physician in New Hampshire, still makes his daily rounds driving his own car. Holder of a gold medal for 50 years' practice, Dr. Hutchinson is three years "up" on Dr. Jordan Cobb, 86, of Berlin.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

Ohio Beer Dealers Pledge 'Clean House'

COLUMBUS, March 10.—A prompt pledge of cooperation was given state officials today in reply to demands that Ohio beer dealers and distributors "clean house."

Several hundred representatives of the malt beverage industry met at a conference yesterday and were told by Liquor Director Jacob R. Taylor that if the industry failed to comply with rules and regulations "we are fully prepared to use every legal means to gain compliance where it is not willingly granted."

William Bruckman of Cincinnati, president of the Buckeye Brewers' association, assured that his group had "full confidence in the liquor department" and would "cooperate fully." Louis Chester of Columbus, secretary of the Wholesale Beer Distributors' Association of Ohio, said a code of ethics intended to halt malpractices had been drafted.

The representatives, called to a conference similar to one between Taylor and distillers in January, heard Gov. John W. Bricker pledge his support to Taylor. "To drive out the violator and the chiselers to the extent of our ability, that we intend to do," the governor declared.

Like Nathan Hale
HOLLYWOOD, March 10—The story of Nathan Hale, the patriot, offers the best possibility for motion picture dramatization of an American historical event, in the opinion of 10,000 teachers.

Their views were presented to Producer Jack L. Warner today by Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, which conducted a national survey of teachers.

Second in popularity was the tale of Stephen Decatur, the naval hero,
and the Mediterranean pirates.

Suicide Is Ruling
WARREN, March 10—A gang-land ride and murder theory was rejected today in the death of Peter Dragmar, 55, of Youngstown. His body was found with a rope knotted around the neck in a ravine south of Girard. Lack of bruises and finding of a note expressing despondency led Trumbull county authorities to believe the death was a suicide.

Warplane Factories Humming As Nations Rearm for the Air

Southern California Aviation Industry Hits
Top Speed

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, March 10—Rearmament in the air, proposed by the administration and approved by congress, means warplanes, and humming factories of Los Angeles county already are being geared to the job of creating part of the new flock.

Fresh crops of military pilots,
schooled in the art of aerial defense against the possibility of invasion from abroad, will have at their disposal training ships to try their wings and fast combat machines for tactical exercises.

More Speed, New Designs
From merger beginnings, the aviation industry of southern California, producing nearly half the nation's planes, commercial and military, has contributed much in fresh speeds and designs to the armed services.

One of the fastest of the current experimental models, a Lockheed twin-engine fighter, recently achieved bursts of speed up to 400 miles an hour on a transcontinental flight.

Engineers are talking confidently of airplanes with top speeds of around 500 miles an hour.

One manufacturer is building what probably will be the world's biggest landplane, capable of flying to Europe and back without refueling, for the army air corps.

In all, some 20 aircraft factories plus half a dozen engine plants, probably will be called upon to supply products in the government's drive for an implemented air defense.

Counting the 30-odd factories which produce all types of aircraft and the dozen which manufacture engines, only 36,000 to 38,000 men are employed regularly by the American aeronautical industry.

That compares with more than 200,000 employees which, last year, were reported on the payrolls of German plants.

70,000 To Be Employed
The aeronautical chamber of commerce estimates that more than 70,000 persons will be working on American aircraft and engines when production of warplanes for our armed services and for foreign orders—notably from France and Great Britain—is fully under way.

Warplane manufacture today is in sharp contrast to the simplicity of production during the World war years. Planes are far more complicated and expensive. Single-seater pursuit planes frequently cost $25,000 each.

The warplane business is a

It's a Deal

NEW YORK — Mrs. Philomena Deul pleaded guilty to allowing her dog to roam the streets without a muzzle, but she added, "half his teeth are gone and he's blind in one eye."
"Well," said Magistrate Anthony P. Savarese, "we'll impose half the usual fine. One dollar."

Persons who want anything, know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

COME TO THINK OF IT . . .

Money spent for WALL PAPER goes a long way in furnishing — and at cost slight in comparison to importance. WALL PAPER covers five of the six surfaces of the room, may be the decoration, or the background; may be softly neutral, or bring cheerful, vigorous, interesting color into one once dull and depressing. May we help you?

"Topper Takes a Trip," that adventure with a live ghost, stars Roland Young and Constance Bennett in a thoroughly entertaining film. The picture shows tonight and Saturday at the State.

Much of the charm of the picture is the apparently magic tricks of camera technique which allows the characters to disappear at will.

Back As Topper

Roland Young is back as Topper, still marred by the ghostly Marion Kerby, again portrayed by saucy Constance Bennett. Billie Burke and Alan Mowbray have their old roles of Mrs. Topper and Topper's man, respectively. Verree Teasdale, Franklin Pangborn, and Alexander D'Arcy are additions to the comedy cast. Norman McLeod, director of "Topper," again wielded the megaphone.

The sequel takes Topper to Paris in search of his wife, who is seeking divorce from her pillaxed husband. Marion Kerby decides to go along and help out but, as usual, she succeeds in getting Topper in even hotter water. The situation is somewhat complicated by the appearance of "Mr. Atlas," Marion's phantom fox-terrier, who is too lazy to disappear completely and usually compromises with one half or another.

Wins at Roulette

In Paris, Marion goes to work on a scheming Baron, wins for Topper at roulette, scandalizes a hotel, and finally lands Topper in jail. Between these dilemmas she finds time to create a host of equally uproarious situations by appearing and disappearing at odd moments.

Constance Bennett as she appears in "Topper Takes a Trip", showing tonight and Saturday at the State theater.

These peccadilloes help to make "Topper Takes a Trip" the most hilarious entertainment that has come to the screen in many months.

Charles Starrett, outdoor action star, plays a different sort of role in the new western, "The Thundering West," showing tonight and Saturday at the Grand theater.

Turns to "Right"
He is seen as a bandit who, unhappy in his choice of fates, turns to the right side of the law at the earliest opportunity.

Exciting, dramatic and suspenseful situations, set against a background of tuneful music and tender romance, comprise "The Thundering West." The bandit's decision to reform, his appointment to the post of sheriff by a townspeople unaware of his identity but grateful for his prevention of a hold-up he himself had planned to commit.

and the final redemption of the man are thrillingly told. Starrett, as the sheriff, rounds up and "cleans out" the outlaw gang to which he had once belonged.

Too Much Wild Life

SALT LAKE CITY — After months of suspicion, Val S. Snow knows the horrible truth—he has skunks in his basement.

While firing the furnace he came onto one of them at too close range. He laid his problem before biological survey and received the comforting information skunks are excellent mousers and harmless, except when annoyed.

Snow's immediate concern is how to keep the furnace in coal until the animals get the spring wander lust—if they do.

Doubting Thomases

SALT LAKE CITY — Detectives peered into a sedan parked at a service station at midnight.

"It'll be all right, I've just had a few drinks" the occupant assured them. Skeptical, one officer flashed a light inside; saw a safe. The driver, car and safe went to jail. The safe yielded $454 cash, $4,000 in checks.

Exhibit Nips Lady

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—One legisla-

the lawmakers wound up by eating the display just the same.

Arguing a conservation measure, the solons had placed before them an exhibit of fresh fish. When the discussion ended, they grabbed.
One lady legislator came out of the rush with bruised fingers—
nipped by an eel.

Under Their Noses

RACINE, Wis.—Gustino Aiello

CARROLL COMETS DEFEATED, 34-25, BY SHASTEEN'S

Texacos Dropped From Class B Tourney by Baptists

The Shasteen Station basketball team remained in the running for second round honors in the Class A league by defeating the Carroll Comets, 34-25, at the Memorial building last night.

Everhart, with 11 points, and Cates, with 11, paced the Shasteen five to victory. Shaffer was high scorer for the losers with nine points.

The garagemen held a slim lead throughout the first three quarters, but in the final period moved out in front by nine points to clinch their victory.

Streaks Post Win

The Silver Streaks also remained in the running for Class A honors by defeating the Sigle Florists 43-36.

Nedeka was the big gun for the streaks, finding the hoops for eight goals and two free throws to tally 18 points. Brudely led his team in defeat, gathering 14 points.

In one of two Class "B" games, the Carroll Cadets took it on the chin, for the first time in the league's round robin tournament, at the hands of the Methodist "A," 42-37.

Kerr with 18 points and Therauld and Wise with 11 points each led their team to victory. Hicking tallied 12 points to gather scoring honors for the Cadets.

Texaco was dropped from the tournament by the Baptists, 28-23, in the other Class B game.

Roberts found the basket for four field goals and one free throw to chalk up nine points for the Baptists. Paul Kimes collected seven markers to lead the Texaco scoring.

Michigan Tankers Battle Ohio State

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 10.—Michigan's Wolverines started a determined drive today to dethrone Ohio State, defending champion, in the 29th annual Big Ten swimming meet in the new Purdue university pool.

The teams, which tied twice in the dual meet season, appeared to be in the team title race by themselves. Although each of the other eight schools boasted outstanding individuals, none seemed strong enough to win the big championship. A wide-open fight for third place was in prospect.

Preliminaries in all events were on the program for this afternoon and tonight. The finals will be held tomorrow night.

SCORING STARS ON FIRST TEAM

Ohio Conference Leaders Win Honorary Berths

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, March 10.—Five of the high-scoring stars of the Ohio Conference won first team berths today on the honorary squad made up of players from that 20-college circuit by the coaches, sports writers and officials.

Frank Shannon of Wittenberg, who dumped 160 points into the bucket in a dozen games, and "Parson Paul" Weaver, Capital University's divinit student who scored 207 in 14 contests, were runaway choices for the forward positions, both rising from last year's second team to this season's first string.

Henderson Leads Balloting

Dave Henderson, captain of Wooster's champion Scots, took over one of the guard berths, and was awarded the team leadership because he topped all others in the balloting. Richcreek of Ashland, who paced the Eagles to one of their best seasons in years, was chosen as Henderson's running mate, while the center job went to big Steve Nesha of Marietta, the only team to beat the defending champion Wittenberg squad.

Toledo, due to its abbreviated conference schedule, was not considered in the conference selections, too few of the coaches, officials and sports writers seeing the Rockets in action against foes.

The selections:

First Team
Shannon, Wittenberg, forward.
Weaver, Capital.
Nesha, Marietta, center.
Henderson, Wooster, guard.
Richcreek, Ashland, guard.

Second Team
Hole, Wooster, forward.
Kuntz, Heidelberg.

Rankin, Wittenberg, guard.
Weiss, Case, guard.

Centers: Zechman of Bowling Green; Mills of Mt. Union. Cindric of Findlay; Walter of Case; Ballenger of Otterbein.

Cleveland Mayor Rolls Perfect Strike To Open Classic

CLEVELAND, March 10.—The American Bowling Congress' 39th annual tenpin tournament opened on the up-beat.

Mayor Harold H. Burton, who prepared for the worst with a statement that he hadn't tangled with spits and spares for 30 years, last night raised the curtain on the 58-day classic with a perfect strike.

A crowd of approximately 2,600 fans attended ceremonies inaugurating the keggers' marathon for prizes totaling $184,000. More than 23,000 bowlers will participate in the bombardment on 32 new alleys in Cleveland's public auditorium.

Penn Batteries, from New Philadelphia, O., turned in a high count of 2792 to lead the initial contingent of 64 five-man teams.

Resumed this afternoon. One entire shift tonight will be devoted to teams representing a single concern, general Motors Corp. of Dayton, O.

At Stake Tonight

CHICAGO, March 10.—The 29th annual Big Ten track championship, promising a blistering team battle between Michigan and Wisconsin from which may come several new records, sends the cream of Western Conference thinsies stars into action tonight at the University of Chicago.

"Stop Michigan" might well be the battle-cry of nine schools' representatives, for the Wolverines have won the title for the last five seasons under Coach Charles Hoyt who resigned yesterday to accept a similar position at Yale. They enter this season's meet strong favorites to make it six in a row as a farewell gift to Hoyt, but may be

"ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY"

by E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER XXXIV

"You have heard rumors of this mobilization of the French fleet?" Sir Francis asked.

"We ensured it out of the press," the Minister declared. "We trusted to the Donaldson to keep things in status quo until we were in a position to offer our explanation. He seems to have bungled it or the French espionage is too clever. Anyway, they seemed to have decided that we have earned our title of 'perfidious Albion'. The French fleet passed through the Straits of Gibraltar late this afternoon at full steam under sealed orders."

"Where on earth are they off to," Matresser demanded.

"The English Channel," was the grim reply. "This way, if you don't mind, Matresser. This service passage here leads to my study. The Prime Minister is there and Symons."

They reached their destination. Tring almost out of breath. The Premier was talking earnestly to Symons, the press magnate.

"Anything fresh from Paris?" Sir Francis asked Atkinson who was standing by the telephone.

"Not a word, sir," the latter replied. "We have sent messengers in every direction for Monsieur Debenet but I am afraid he is deliberately keeping away."

"Cut off Paris then," Tring directed. "Do everything you can to find the French Ambassador. He may have been sent for but it is doubtful whether he can have left the house yet. He must be found, Atkinson. Do you understand that? There was always a chance of serious trouble if anything leaked out before tomorrow. Seems to me we've run up against it."

"I understand perfectly," the young man declared, hurrying out of the room.

The Premier, cool and grave, led Matresser aside.

"I sent for you," he said, "because I am anxious to know whether you will act once more in the capacity of—shall I call it envoy extraordinary—from St. James's?"

"I am willing to do anything I can, sir."

"Will you leave for Paris or Ram-bouillet tonight?"

"Certainly. If Heston can give me a plane I can be there at day-break."

"You will have a disagreeable task," the Premier warned.

"It was not exactly child's play, sir, in East Africa."

"You will have to stand up to a very excitable man and, if necessary, you will have to tell him why we did not dare to trust him."

"I think I understand the situation, sir, except for one point," Matresser said. "That, I must confess, puzzles me."

"Go on."

"Why was full disclosure not made to the French Cabinet last night? I understood that that was the arrangement."

"A very serious interference with our plans arose," the Premier confided. "How the news was kept out of the evening papers I cannot imagine. Symons here, with fifteen correspondents in Paris, knew nothing of it. You read of the crashing of the French plane near Boulogne."

"Of course. All three passengers killed, weren't they?"

"The Premier nodded.

"The unidentified one was Som-erby."

"What—Lord Somerby?"

"Lord Somerby, our Ambassador to France," the Premier groaned.

"Not one of us had the slightest idea that he was traveling by that plane. I'm afraid there was something a little unusual—but never mind that now. He was on the plane burned to death and his papers with him. His appointment with the French Premier was never kept. Not a soul at our Embassy there knew what had happened to him. Our special wire to Paris has been cut on the French side."

Matresser was truly astounded.

"But what made Somerby travel by that plane?" he demanded.

"An act of idiosyncrasy," the Premier said gravely. "He has paid for it with his life. It is for us to try to pull things straight again if we can. Your plane is waiting at Heston, Matresser. You must reach Lacheur and Desselin before dawn, if you have to break into their houses. If you don't, we shall be at war with France by midday."

"I'll do what I can, sir," Matresser answered.

The British envoy extraordinary paused in some weariness. By means of cunning, tact, princely largesse and stoical perseverance, he had forced his way into an all-night conference between the Premier of France and his Secretary for Foreign Affairs but it seemed to him that he had never found so unresponsive an auditor as this stiff, gray-bearded and gray-moustached, stockily built little man—the Premier.

"I trust," Matresser wound up, "that you have now, sir, a clearer apprehension of this matter. You will realize, of course, that everything would have been put before you in a more statesmanlike manner many hours ago, but for the unfortunate accident to the plane in which Lord Somerby was traveling."

The conference which was being held between the three men in a magnificent bureau of the Quai d'Orsay had commenced at three o'clock in the morning and had already lasted more than two hours. There were Monsieur Henri Lacheur, Premier of France at that moment but only two months before a dresser of calf skin in Orleans, and Monsieur Gaston Desselin, who had held the post of Minister for Foreign Affairs half a dozen times during his lifetime and who had now been hurriedly recalled to office.

"Certainly," the Premier admitted gravely, "your explanation throws a somewhat different light upon the subject, Lord Matresser, but we are still—my colleague here and I—what words can I use?—dumbfounded, shocked, that you should have proceeded without France so far as you have in these negotiations with a country which we consider our common enemy."

"If you press that point, Monsieur," Matresser replied, "I must answer it. I shall have to ask you to believe that the government, on behalf of which I am speaking, can only offer you plain facts and beg you to consider these for a moment from its point of view."

"Your explanation is somewhat confusing," the Premier remarked drily, "but pray continue."

"The English Cabinet," Matresser went on, changing his place slightly to avoid the first rays of sunshine pouring in through the high windows, "realizes that you may have some apparent cause for complaint but it offers you a frank and full explanation. I believe I am correct in saying that the French government has fallen and been re-established six times during the last thirteen months."

"France remains!" Gaston Desselin exclaimed with theatrical force.

"Precisely," Matresser assented, "but to whom could we turn to open our scheme? Since we opened tentative negotiations, first of all with a retiring German dictator and secondly with a small but powerful committee of German statesmen, three French cabinets have been established and fallen. You see the point of this, I am sure. Three of those men who must have answered for your country have abandoned politics and gone back into private life. At least one of these was an enterprising journalist who would have been free at any time to publish our scheme to the whole world and thereby destroy it."

Matresser paused. Neither of his auditors had anything to say except that the Premier muttered a name under his breath.

"The fact and that fact alone is responsible for what must have seemed to you our secrecy, a secrecy which would have been ended yesterday before your Cabinet meeting if this terrible mishap had not befallen our Ambassador."

"I withhold comment," the Premier said in reply to a questioning glance from Matresser. "I wish to hear all that you have to say, sir."

"The crux of Lord Somerby's mission here," Matresser continued, "was to explain why it had been necessary for us to work in secrecy, but there was never a time, nor has any modification or variation in this scheme ever been suggested, which lessened the security of France. The agreement which is drawing towards its final settlement, Monsieur Lacheur and Monsieur Desselin, contains the written pledge of Germany to abstain for fifty years from any act of war or aggression against your country and provides you with definite and cast-iron pledges that this promise will be kept. . . . For this you pay—what? You pay nothing. England pays for you."

For the first time Matresser felt that he had impressed his auditors. It is true that they had flinched at that last baldly spoken statement but they listened to it without protestation. Lacheur rose to his feet and paced the room. With a glance of apology towards Matresser, he beckoned to Desselin and whispered for a moment or two in his ear.

Matresser, grateful for the respite leaned back in his chair. The early morning fatigue of a man who has been without sleep for many hours was stealing upon him. Presently Lacheur and his companion returned to their places. A glance from the former gave Matresser the cue to continue.

"You must forgive me," he went on, "if I have spoken too frankly, but it is at your own request and a misunderstanding between us now would be fatal. England is willing to offer as a free gift those colonies which have cost her millions to subdue, to say nothing of the lives of her soldiers spent in their conquest. I am an Englishman and yet I dare to say that no nation in the world has ever made such a gesture for peace or offered such a sacrifice to bring it about. I ask you, Monsieur Lacheur, and you, Monsieur Desselin, to recognize that fact and to impress it upon your President. Announce it yourself from the rostrum, Monsieur Lacheur, point to it—why not?—as a diplomatic triumph achieved by your government, and you should remain in office by popular acclaim. Banish forever from your minds any idea that England, who has never ceased to consider you her ally, has any selfish advantage to gain by the carrying out of this great scheme. It is simply a sincere effort to give peace to the world."

There was a brief silence. Monsieur Lacheur exchanged a few words in an undertone with his companion.

"You must forgive us, Lord Matresser," Lacheur said, "if I confess that you have left us—shall I say a little trouble. We recognize your sincerity but the terms in which you have expressed yourself have been, to say the least of it, unusual. 'I am not a politician,' Matresser replied, 'neither am I a diplomat. I have traveled all my life in different parts of the British Empire and of Europe and I believe I can say that I was among the first to discover the real feeling in Germany. I have interested myself in that because long ago I came to the conclusion that European peace with a discontented Germany could never become a permanent condition." "The conclusion was without doubt justified but I shall be as frank as you have been frank," Lacheur declared. "Even after your very plausible explanation, neither my colleague nor I wholly understand how you ventured to proceed with these negotiations and preserve such extraordinary secrecy."
